

NO JOHN BROWN SPRING

Also the Osawatimie Man Never Owned Any Land in Kansas, Says an Authority.

The warmest disputes about Kansas history are caused by the question, "Did John Brown ever own any land in this state?"

J. F. Jarrell, publicity agent of the Santa Fe, recently wrote to a person whose authority on Kansas history is unquestioned, and asked that person to tell him about John Brown. This is the answer he received this week:

"Sorry am I to destroy any of your idols, but truth must prevail. John Brown never owned any land in Kansas. He did not come here as a settler. He was a free-soiler and lived on them, but Brown slept where night overtook him, and he made many calls on his headwaters. The Lincolns, who people maintain that Brown bought a claim-right in that county, and lived on the claim, but they have not been able positively to establish the fact. They tell a story of papers having been burned of cetera."

The battle of Osawatimie took place on August 30, 1856. Brown was in command of the Free State forces and General John W. R. Bell commanded the Pro-Slavery men. There were several men killed, blood enough shed to dignify it a battle. I understand that Reid had killed a man named Paola, a great story about the raid and insists that it was no battle. Probably have been blurred the vision of his early donors, or memory of Civil war battles dwarfed the battle of Osawatimie."

There never has been a John Brown spring in Miami county. The spring there was the O. C. Brown spring. You will recall all the excitement over the christening of that tieship Kansas. The water used on that occasion came from a spring in Lima county.

"Does this tell you more than you wanted to know?"

SPRIT OF PEACE

and in most of the church services of last night and this morning the children made contributions to be used for the poorer children. The former brought their presents, their toys and their nickels, to the churches and today their presents are being distributed by automobile to the poor boys and girls.

There was no municipal Christmas tree in Topeka this year. With the thousands of trees in homes, the big trees at the various churches it is doubtful if many children failed to see one. But to make certain that no child was missed the Elks entertained nearly 1,200 children this morning with an immense Christmas tree, individual presents and music.

The Elks Tree.

The Elks tree is an annual affair. Weeks in advance a directors' committee of all the children in Topeka who make outside attention on Christmas day. The number usually runs around 1,600. The members of the local lodge contribute liberally for the purchase of a tree, decorations, candy, nuts and other things of that character. This morning at 10 o'clock the lodge was thronged on hand for the annual celebration. There were big boys and big girls, there were tiny babies and children in care of older brothers and sisters. Each and everyone was remembered. There were no "left-outs" in the program—no long enough to make the big Christmas frolic that was on. Then the children went to the Best and Cozy moving picture theater to see the guests of the Elks. There is no happier annual affair in Topeka than the Elks' Christmas celebration for the youngsters.

The Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army did its usual good work in distributing Christmas baskets. All yesterday afternoon the barracks at 409 Kansas avenue were crowded with people who came for their baskets. Each basket contained a Christmas dinner big enough to feed from five to eight people. Two hundred and fifty such dinners were distributed by Ensign W. G. Houser. The Salvation Army is systematic in its Christmas charity and each year has given out upon the presentation of a card. The cards had been distributed after each case was investigated and found to be worthy.

In each basket was a roast, or if there was someone sick in the family, chicken, then came a double loaf of bread, potatoes, milk, coffee, apples, butter, sugar, a can of vegetables and a can of peaches. The Salvation Army collected the money and the supplies providing these dinners from the charitable inclined people of Topeka. Ensign Houser does not believe there is a worthy home in Topeka today without a good Christmas dinner.

The Confidential Exchange.

In fact the Christmas work was so completely organized in Topeka this year that there was little chance for a miss. Through the Confidential Exchange, supervised by the Public Welfare Committee of the Commercial club, was kept of the work of most churches and charitable organizations. Duplications were largely abolished also.

For instance, the Confidential Exchange knew where every basket furnished by the Salvation Army was going, and allowed no other baskets from other organizations to go to those homes. Below are the organizations and concerns doing their Christmas work in a co-operative manner through the Confidential Exchange:

Salvation Army: State Savings bank, large donation of toys; twelve classes in the Central Congregational church helped needy families; Euclid Avenue M. E. church gave Christmas trees and helped generally; Mispah class of the First Presbyterian church cared for sixty-two families; the Moose lodge cared for twenty families; the boys' class to the Swedish Mission church, furnished several dinners; Congregational Sunday school at Maple Hill sent a box of toys; the girls of the Harveyville high school sent a box of dolls; a "Willow Workers" at Mission Center, furnished dinners for twelve needy families. In addition to all these the following persons or organizations rendered material assistance through the Exchange: Pleasant Hour club, Child Study club, Altruistic club of Central church, U. I. club, Spaulding circle, N. N. S. club, P. E. O., First Christian church, Mrs. Hazelrigg, who is pastor of the Christian church, First Baptist church, Westminster Presbyterian church, North Topeka Presbyterian church, Lowman Hill Methodist church, City Federation of Colored clubs, B. Y. P. U., Good Government club, Assisi club, and Miss Warner's class at the Y. W. C. A.

Many charitable individuals could be included in the list but they did not care to have their charity advertised. The money given by them, unless otherwise specified, was spent for toys for children. Money was given by one aged man for the benefit of two needy people. Sets of dishes were given to three families. The Provident association carried on its charitable work in the usual efficient manner.

The above list with an understanding of the systematic manner in which the Christmas charity was handled, it is hard to believe that any worthy family was overlooked. And that is what Topeka hopes today—that no one who needed or would appreciate help was overlooked.

STICK TO SCHEDULE

Christmas Wedding of Herington Couple Is Solemnized as Planned Regardless of a Broken Arm.

A month in the hospital as the result of a crushed arm, did not serve to delay the wedding of Miss Georgia Mae Cullins and George Smith of Herington today. The couple had set their wedding day for Christmas.

December 1, Smith was injured when a freight car passed over his arm in the railroad yards at Herington. A few minutes before noon today an auto left the curb in front of Stormont hospital. A young man with his arm in a sling leaned on the arm of a friend.

The auto went to the First Methodist church, where the ceremony was held. The bride and groom, wearing their wedding attire, were waiting for the couple returned to the hospital where Smith must stay for several weeks before leaving for home in Herington.

The company also distributed a Christmas dinner to every employee on the payroll.

Big Increase for Express Companies.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—Officials of express companies here pointing today to a huge increase in express business in the last six months drew from it the conclusion that the country is prosperous. Christmas business, they say, has been 30 per cent more than last year and in the last half year the volume has increased to such proportions that special trains have been run and thousands of feet of floor space have been added to their working quarters.

ELKS MAKE GOOD

Give Hundreds of Topeka Children Time of Their Lives.

Judge Yates as Santa Claus Introduced by J. L. King.

Ever see an Elk Christmas tree? Ever watch twelve or fourteen hundred wide-eyed eager children—youthsters whose home Christmas is a slim affair—greet a real live Santa Claus with the knowledge that each and every one was to receive a present, candy and fruit, followed by ice cream and cake?

If you haven't you don't know what you missed this morning when the Elks opened their doors to the unfortunate children of Topeka. There was a steady stream of boys and girls on West Seventh street from nine o'clock on. There were big, overgrown boys who scorned the idea of a Santa Claus but who wanted to get in on the good things. There were big girls, too. There were children of all ages and sizes, white and colored, good and bad. There were sturdy boys and girls, then there were pathetic little cripples. For the time, all were happy, made so by the good offices of the Elk lodge.

The big assembly room was filled even to standing room long before the children of Topeka were ushered in. The late arrivals were ushered into two rooms downstairs and entertained until the main entertainment for the first section was over. Then they trooped up the stairs and took their turn.

Judge R. L. Yates acted as Santa Claus. He was introduced by J. L. King, who first told the children the meaning of Christmas day. He told the story of Christ in such simple terms that even the smaller children listened intently to every word of it. Santa Claus talked to the children also, then passed down among them shaking hands right and left. By so doing he almost started a stampede. Even one of the smaller children wanted to shake hands. One diminutive colored boy insisted upon hanging onto Judge Yates' hand.

Tree Was a Marvel.

The tree itself was a marvel and when the heavy curtains were pulled back revealing it the children yelled, "What and stood on their chairs. There was almost as much of a din when Santa Claus bade them goodbye. In his hand he carried a long list of names and he waved the list, shouting "Good-bye, Santa, goodbye."

Distribution of presents was conducted in an orderly manner. Numerous Elks acted as ushers. The children in the front rows marched forward and receiving all they could carry in their two hands. From the assembly room, with beaming faces, they marched down the stairs to the dining room, knowing there was a further treat awaiting them. Eighteen tables were spread and 170 children were served with ice cream and cakes at one time. As fast as the seats were vacated new delegations from the waiting crowd on the main floor were conducted up. After the wheels started to turn, no stop until every boy and girl had received the allotted presents and the relief.

The children were not alone in their happiness. Old gray-haired Elks stood around at the edges of the hall, their eyes shining and unconsciously imitating the expressions on the faces of the children. There were present, wives and mothers who thoroughly enjoyed the affair. For the hour business and household cares were laid aside and the grownups entered into the happy world they had made for the children.

Party for President.

Hot Springs, Va., Dec. 25.—President and Mrs. Wilson participated in an old-fashioned Virginia Christmas celebration held in the spacious lounge of their hotel here. It was their first appearance in the public part of the hotel since they arrived Sunday to spend their honeymoon.

A big and gaily decorated Christmas tree, filling one end of the lounge was presided over by a dusky Santa Claus. Before it disappeared fifteen minutes whose antics and musical efforts kept the president and everybody else almost convulsed with laughter.

BIG AND GROWING

Dooley Lightning Rod Factory Is a Topeka Concern.

It Is Closing One of Its Most Prosperous Years.

Years ago the lightning rod agent used to be the butt of all the jokesmiths in the country. As time went on, however, mother-in-law (the female of the species is more deadly than the male) crowded the lightning rod man off the perch. In Topeka the A. J. Dooley Lightning Rod company manufactures the product that gives the agent work to do.

In all the fifteen years that the Dooley company has been manufacturing lightning rods the business in 1915 has been larger than all years before. Recently the company finished wiring the buildings of the Leas Warren Milling company at Salina, Kan. This work with that at the State Manual Training school at Pittsburg, the Newman Mills and Elevator company's entire plant, the Fredonia Linsed Oil company, Fredonia, Kan., and the building of a new high school college, St. Marys, Kan., have kept the company busy.

The business of the Topeka company is mostly wholesale. The three two coil rods are made and sold in 100-foot bolts to the local dealers. "Lightning does not strike except where the electricity in the air and in the ground come into contact," explained Mr. Dooley. "The lightning rod acts as a conductor of the ground electricity and thus eliminates the chance for lightning striking the building. Lightning rods do not attract lightning like many people believe. They simply give an outlet for ground electricity into the air."

The lightning rod has two functions: (1) To prevent discharges. This is done through the action of the points which permit the electricity to leak from the structure. Usually the leakage is rapid enough so that the electric charges of the cloud and the building are equalized and a discharge is prevented. But if the charges accumulate so rapidly that the leakage from the points cannot neutralize the electric charge, a stroke occurs, then the lightning-conductors (2) prevent damage by conducting the lightning stroke current to ground. If there are no conductors forming a low resistance path to the ground, the stroke will select its own path, which will be relatively high resistance and will probably damage the building or set it on fire.

The Dooley company has recently been reorganized and Mr. Dooley has taken his son, Max Dooley, into the firm.

Peace Was Emphasized.

Peace was emphasized in the decorations of Hot Springs municipal tree and in the songs by a large chorus. A parade with three Santas featured the holiday in similar fashion. Houston, Fort Worth, Beaumont and Corpus Christi also having municipal trees.

Many cities in Oklahoma and Kansas distributed gifts to children who otherwise would have been forgotten. Two thousand packages of candy were given away in Oklahoma City. Kansas City's municipal celebration was postponed owing to inclement weather and five inches of snow. It will be held next week around a municipal tree on the station plaza.

Thousands of destitute families were glad to see today when the different charitable organizations of the city took it into their hands to make that every appeal for help was answered.

The Mayor's Christmas Tree Association sent Christmas dinners to 1,500 homes. The Salvation Army, the different social settlements over the city and the dinners given in the North end of the city, all contributed to bringing Christmas cheer to the less fortunate in Kansas City.

Soldiers Sing Carols.

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 25.—A chorus of 200 United States soldiers, accompanied by three massed military bands singing Christmas carols and hymns, was the feature of the municipal Christmas tree celebration here. Gifts of clothing, toys and other articles were distributed among hundreds of children, the majority of them Mexican. The celebration was given by members of families of refugee Mexicans.

Denver, Col., Dec. 25.—Boy scouts and camp fire girls carried Christmas cheer to many families in Denver, distributing well filled baskets to the poor, fraternal and charitable organizations in addition say that other poor were cared for.

Wonders of Surgery.

London, Dec. 25.—Because there were not enough toys to go around, boys at the community Christmas tree party were given a special gift. They were given a new arm stump.

One of the most brilliant of London's surgeons has now built out a new stump to which an artificial arm may be attached. He did this by taking out a piece of bone from the patient's leg and cutting a flap of skin from his body. Muscles were attached to the bone, so that the stump can be guided.

TO PAY BACK MONEY

Millionaire Coal Magnate to Settle School Accounts of Defunct Pittsburg Bank.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 25.—H. C. Frick, millionaire coal magnate, has announced that he will pay in full, as a Christmas gift, all the accounts of the 41,000 school children depositors in the Pittsburg Bank for Savings, closed here last Wednesday by order of the state department of banking. The deposits amount to $167,136.68 and payment will be made in cash just as soon as the necessary arrangements can be completed, which will probably be about January 5.

The school savings fund was started many years ago. Through an agreement with the city board of education, bank collectors visited the 132 schools in the city weekly. Penny by penny the deposits of the children increased. Then a few days before Christmas announcement was made that the bank had been closed.

Whitcomb Riley's Christmas Note.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 25.—James Whitcomb Riley, who is in Florida for the winter, has sent the following Christmas message to the people of Indiana: "Christmas means love. We cannot picture it without seeing the smiling Christmas tree girl with the faces of gleeful youngsters, glad parents, and happy bodies returned home from town or far metropolis. It sounds like bells and crackling logs and shouts of children. And even our old, round shouldered, sorrow-ridden plane, with his eyes checked out on his cheek, passing to smile from sea to sea, and love in everywhere rejuvenated."
